ties, which, with present railroad connections and the lack of water in the iron fields, makes Utah lake the logical place for the furnaces and coke ovens according to the local engineers. The iron is of high grade that the cost of hauling the ore would be but slightly in excess of the cost of hauling the pig iron, which is shipped to the mills from Carbondale or Emery county to Utah lake would not be so great as to haul it to Iron county, even if the absence of water were not a factor. It would furnish an insuperable obstacle to the building of a plant at the mines.

The development of the iron fields of Utah is being retarded by the lack of railroads. Both the Salt Lake route and the Rio Grande Western are within easy striking distance of the ore de-

MY DAD AND ME.

(Montreal Herald.)

Seems like everything I want to do, My dad, he jes' don't want me to; He says his boys are all a-squawking, It's fool-hiness, an' that he chaw's A 'trot around an' climb an' yodel, Has got to let 'em do an' squaw, He got ter work, dad says, at ten, An' that's the way ter train up men, Things stay, things change, an' those are the ways.

'Gill dad's kluge, an' they jest stays, An' so 's where he can't agree,

My dad an' me.

Bob Hunter's dad, he takes him out Through woods, an' fields, an' all about.

Bob Hunter, he jes' knows a pile
His dad he showed how him; guess you'd
-cmie
Ter hear him tell o' birds an' things;
He jes' knows a pile o' things, an' he jes' where ter find the ole muskrat.
An' lots o' queer things more'n that.
He jes' knows a pile o' wents s'bout the noise,
jes' 'tain't no use to humor boys.
I guess that's why we can't agree,
My dad an' me.
Bob's father, he jes' jump right in,
Plays an' an' sings an' he jes' like us.
An' laughs at us when we get mad,
An' jokes in till we wish we had.
He jes' told us he jes' knows a pile
O' things, an' he jes' where ter find 'em.
When we smack back, He says that's
Are bound ter get knocked when we're
-cmie
An' laughs now at bumps, why when
We all grow up we won't mind much
O' nothin' but the ole muskrat.
O' nature; Bob's dad says, Wish mine
Would fool an' talk jes' like you.
Ter jes' know your dad, an' he knows
you,
Ter jes' know your dad, an' he knows
you.

But dad don't, so we don't agree.
My dad ain't no—

(Philadelphia Press.)

"I couldn't help remarking, Mr. Bull," said the girl who was forever fishing for compliments, "what a nice confidential chat you were having with Miss Kulcher. I fear you'll find me dull by comparison."

"Not at all," replied Mr. Bull. "It will be a positive relief to talk to a girl who is not clever—that is, er—lovely weather, isn't it?"
